"BONE DRY" BILL GOES THROUGH

House Passes Measure By Big Majority—Beckham Fears It Will Retard State-Wide

Prohibition legislation of the most drastic nature was approved by Congress Wednesday when the House by a vote of 321 to 72 accepted the Senate rider to the Post-office Administration Bill, making it a crime to send intoxicating liquor into States where its manufacture and sale is prohibited.

Coupled with this provision, which will have the effect of making twenty-five States "bone dry" was provision that newspapers, circulars and cards carrying liquor advertisements cannot be carried through the United States mails into States where publication of such advertisements are forbidden. Eleven States now have such laws. The states, where the bone dry bill will have its effect are: Alaska, Alabama, Arkansas, Arizona, Arizona, Colorado, Georgia, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, Michigan, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, North Carolina, Oregon, Oklahoma, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Washington.

The most curious line-up of "wet" and "dry" forces that Congress has seen since the birth of the prohibition movement, developed on the final roll call on the so-called Reed amendment. Many "dry" members opposed the drastic measures on the ground that it would nullify State laws which do not restrict "personal use" and that it would prove harmful to the cause. Many "wet" members voted for it because they believed in giving the alleged "dry" States a taste of prohibition that prohibits.

All arguments advanced against such drastic legislation by either "near drys" or "wets" were swept aside in the determination of the House to carry prohibition legislation to its greatest heights. "Dry" members tried to show the legislation would hurt the cause of prohibition; but "bone dry" members refused to listen; "wets" sought to demonstrate the harmful effects in financial way of such sumptuary legislation and other "wets" followed the principle; "If they want prohibition let's give them the real thing."

One of the Kentucky members of the House only two voted against the legislation. They were Representatives Swager Sherley, of Louisville, and A. B. Rouse, of Burlington.

Those voting for the Reed amendment were: Alben W. Barkley, of Paducah; David H. Kincheloe, of Madisonville; Robert Y. Thomas, Jr., of Central City; Harvey Helm, of Stanford; J. Campbell Cantrell, of Georgetown; William J. Fields, of Olive Hill; John W. Langley, of Pikeville and Caleb Powers, of Barbourville.

In regard to this bill, the Cincinnati Enquirer said in a dispatch from Washington: The passage of the Reed amendment to the Postoffice Appropriation bill prohibiting the interstate shipment of liquor into dry states for beverage purposes is regarded in some quarters as one of the most brilliant maneuvers that liberals have made recently in stemming the tide of prohibitory legislation. Dry leaders assert the amendment is so drastic it will defeat prohibition, causing the repeal of some state laws and delaying the passage of others.

When the Senate had the bill last week, a number of the drys, led by Senator Beckham, voted against the measure as being really too drastic for many states where state-wide prohibition has not yet been voted. Senator Beckham made the following statement about his position:

"The effect of the so-called Reed amendment, if it should be finally enacted into law, would undoubtedly be to hurt the cause of prohibition and those friends of prohibition in the Senate, who supported it did not, I think, fully understand what its effect would be."

"In practically all of the States which have adopted prohibition there have been limitations in their laws permitting a certain small amount of liquor for personal use to those who desire it. It has been found impracticable to make the law too drastic and absolute at the beginning, and it has been considered best to let such laws, by gradual processes, reach the 'bone dry' stage."

"The Reed amendment would make impossible any such limitation and would put it out of the power of any State to do so."

"It is so drastic that it would unquestionably have the effect of injuring or defeating the cause of prohibition in any State. In Kentucky, for instance, when the issue of State-wide prohibition comes it is probable that the proposed law or amendment would provide for a limited personal use, as has been done in other States which have adopted prohibition, and leave it to future legislation to further limit or abolish such allowances."

"It can be easily understood that the liquor interests believe that their chances of defeating the prohibition amendment in Kentucky, or in any other State, would be greatly increased if the amendment is made as severe and drastic as possible. There is no reason for Congressional enactment on this subject at this time, because the opinion of the Supreme Court upholding the constitutionality of the Webb-Kenyon act gives the power to each State to regulate this matter as it deems best."

"Another objection to this amendment is the fact that its purpose was to injure the chances of the passage of the Jones amendment, to which it was offered as an amendment."

"The Jones amendment proposed to forbid the use of the United States mails for the circulation of liquor advertisements in those States whose laws prohibited such advertisements; a most reasonable and righteous measure."

"The Reed amendment brought up a different subject, and should not properly be attached to the Jones amendment."

"For these reasons, I joined with Senator Kenyon, Senator Jones and other leaders of the prohibition cause in the Senate in an effort to strike out the Reed amendment, and to leave with the States, for the present at least, the power to deal with that feature of the subject. Several advocates of prohibition in the Senate took a different view of it, and supported it, and the amendment was adopted in the Senate. It is by no means certain, however, that it will get through Congress. I think it will get to the best interests of genuine progressive prohibition if it does not."

May Pipe Gas Here

Big Well In South End Still Booming—Oil Interests Grows

Oil interest is booming in the South End of this county and in Pulaski and Rockcastle. The Schuler gas well is pumping out gas like the exhaust of a racing automobile and plans are being made to pipe gas to Stanford and Somerset. Almost every foot of land in the southern section of this county has been grabbed with leases by oil prospectors and everyone expects a big strike. Neighboring parishes are talking about the interest in their communities as follows:

The Mt. Vernon Signal said last week: Oil men are getting thick around this section. A Pennsylvania party arrived yesterday and is out now getting leases for a company that wants to do some drilling.

Pulaski Oil Prospects.

The Somerset Journal said of oil prospects in Pulaski, last week:

Much has been written in the past year about the possibilities of this county as an oil producing territory and the great development that was expected to come, following the visit of many oil men here. There has hardly been a week during the past six months that some oil man has not been here seeking leases or trying to get some information of interest to take back to the east with him.

It can be stated now positively that within ninety days actual development will have begun. This week a deal was closed by some Estill county people who have several thousand acres of leases in the eastern part of the county, with an eastern concern to put down several wells. It is expected drilling will begin by April first.

There are several other deals pending that are expected to be closed within short time, which will mean more development. In fact, at this time, it is no trouble to interest oil men in this section. In the last few weeks they have been hunting up propositions, before that it was hard to get a hearing.

Mr. Proctor, of Wayne county, representing two eastern oil companies was in the city yesterday to negotiate a deal with local parties who own several thousand acres of land.

Mr. Proctor says that his company is willing to take a shot at Pulaski for he believes that there is oil here. He says there will be a great deal of development in this section during the spring and summer. He says oil men seem to favor this section for what might be termed wildcatting.

Drilling Near Brodhead, Too.

Drilling is to start at once in the Brodhead section of Rockcastle. The Brodhead correspondent to the Mt. Vernon Signal said that The Brodhead Oil Company, a brand new organization, met Wednesday night for the purpose of deciding on a place to drill their first well, and we understand that it was decided to put down a well on the farm of J. A. Osborne about two miles west of Brodhead. The Brodhead people are expecting to be wading in oil up to their eyes in the next few weeks, and even Uncle Ben Yaden is imagining that he is closely related to John D., and we hope to see many John D.'s before spring.

Waynesburg Boy Killed

Ralph Ratliff In Fatal Shooting Af-fay In Pike County

Ralph Ratliff, who went from the southern portion of Lincoln back to his former home in Pike county several weeks ago, was killed in a pistol duel in that county last week. Mr. Ratliff has many friends and relatives in the Waynesburg section, who will regret to learn of the unfortunate affair. A dispatch to the daily papers had the following concerning the shooting:

Whitesburg, Ky., Feb. 18.—One man is dead and two others, one the postmaster of Hellier, Pike county, probably are fatally wounded as the result of a quarrel in a restaurant at Hellier. Jay Branham, 21, is dead, his body riddled by a dozen bullets from the posse he attempted to fight. Patton Bartley, postmaster at Hellier and Ralph Ratliff are in a hospital in Jenkins, Bartley with an abdomen wound and Ratliff with a serious body wound. The trouble started over a trivial matter in a restaurant and came to blows. Branham then drew a revolver and fired. As Ratliff fell to the floor he ran from the place flourishing his revolver and holding off those who attempted to hold him. He was overtaken by a posse about a mile from town and was ordered to surrender. A shot was the answer and Postmaster Bartley fell wounded. The members of the posse fired at the flash and Branham's body was found on the tracks, a gun in his hand, riddled with bullets. Both the wounded men are expected to die.

Big CONCERN HOLDS MEETING

The Boering Land and Mining Company met here Thursday in connection with matters relating to their rich holdings in Harlan county. George Kellebrew, a Nashville, Tenn., capitalist was here to confer with them. Among those at the meeting were W. H. Hayden, of Paris, A. H. Wood, of Harlan county, James W. Fox, New York, H. E. Fox, of Big Stone Gap, George A. McRoberts, of Danville, their attorney H. G. Clay, of London, and from this city Col. S. T. Harris, J. S. Hoekier, J. C. Eu-banks, J. B. Foster, C. E. Tate; from Danville J. S. VanWinkle and J. W. Williams, of Paris.

The House passed the Army Appropriation Bill, carrying $250,000,000.

That England's anti-submarine fleet of 4,000 armed private yachts, whalers and fishing vessels, manned by 60,000 seamen, has destroyed 200 German submersibles was asserted by Alfred Noyes, the English poet.

The latest reports from London and Paris show that additional vessels of an aggregate tonnage of more than 21,000 have been sent to the bottom by submarines or mines. The vessels sunk were four British seafarers and a trawler, one Russian, one Swedish, one Dutch and one Norwegian steamer. The Swedish steamer had several Americans on board. All of them and the remainder of the crew were rescued.

The death knell to Germany's colonial possessions has been sounded, so far as the Entente Allies can effect that result, by the almost simultaneous announcement of the Japanese Minister of Colonies, and the Prime Minister of New Zealand. Together these statements declare there will be no return to Germany of her colonies in Africa, Asia or the Pacific.

Special Court Term

Is Set By Judge Hardin To Try Big Robinson Case

Circuit court adjourned over the Washington Birthday holiday till tomorrow, but the grand jury was back on the job today and is understood to be making a diligent inquiry as to the work of evil-doers in all sections of the county.

Judge Hardin has called a special term of court for week after next at which time the suit of J. B. Robinson's executor against the Equitable Life Assurance Society will be tried out, it is understood and an effort be made to clear up other pending actions on the docket. A very large number of cases were continued over this week on account of absent witnesses and other causes.

The grand jury this week returned indictments against George Thornton, Jim Thornton and Mike Gaddis charged with the killing of Willie Benedict at the Harris Creek schoolhouse on Christmas night. The defendants, who are out on bond, will have to appear in court tomorrow to answer to the indictments, and at that time it is expected that a time for the trials will be fixed.

The trial of Wm. Baker, who killed Renzo King with a corn knife at Moreland some months ago, has been set for next Tuesday.

Robert Raines was fined $5 and costs on a charge of disturbing religious worship.

A rule was issued against Sheriff Cam Mullins to appear and show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court for failing to collect $63.70, the amount of a fine and costs assessed against Wm. Helton, at a previous term of court on a breach of the peace charge. Morgan Helton, who had been on his bond came into court and swore that the other Helton had property out of which the amount could be made.

On a charge that a soft drink stand they conducted near McKinney, was a public nuisance, Zora Smith and John Montgomery were fined $100 and costs.

Civit C. Smith was found not guilty on a charge of having more liquor in his possession than permitted by law.

Upon motion of Commonwealth's Attorney E. V. Puryear, the charges against Tom Brown and Roscoe Buis, jailer and deputy sheriff respectively, of Casey county, charged with being engaged in an attack upon an Adair county boy in the Moreland depot last summer, were dismissed. Sam Raines, marshal of Liberty, who was with them at the time they were engaged in search for a man wanted in Casey, paid a fine of $120, as a compromise of the case. Buis is a candidate for the republican nomination for sheriff of Casey and is said by his friends to have his race won. He was accompanied here Wednesday by "Bud" Cundiff, the efficient and popular county clerk of Casey.

The grand jury met in session on Friday and is working hard examining a lot of witnesses. It has already returned a number of indictments.

Crab Orchard

Beautiful Spring-like weather has been thankfully received and appreciated after the protracted bitter weather of the whole winter.

Mr. James Anderson, of Louisville, gladdened his many warm friends here Monday. He had been to Preachersville to see his father, Mr. John Anderson, who remains critically ill.

Mr. Hendley Napier, who has been visiting his mother here, left for Bowling Green, where he will enter school, taking a business course.

Hendley is one of our young men who is not satisfied with a stand on the lower round of the ladder, realizing there is a finer view at the top. We hope he will succeed in his climb.

Messrs. Jordan and Tribble, of Stanford were here Sunday afternoon to see two of our pretties girls.

About seventeen members of the Ladies' Aid of the Christian church were delightfully entertained by Mrs. W. E. Perkins Monday afternoon.

Splendid refreshments were served and the crowd enjoyed a real musical treat by Misses Byrd Perkins and Tanna Thompson. Both these young ladies have been thoroughly trained in vocal music, and it is always a treat to hear them sing—if we do have to insist sometimes.

Mr. Walker Napier, who has a position in Paris, is here to see his mother, Mrs. Anna Napier.

Mrs. Claudia Holman and daughter Maymie, left Saturday for Mobile, Ala., where they will spend a week with Mr. David Holman, and from there they go to New Orleans and will probably be absent from us until April.

Mr. Billy George Holman, of Tennessee, came home to see his mother and sister, but reached here just a short while after they had left. He returned to his work Sunday.

Last Saturday evening Miss Edna King entertained a few friends at her home, near town, in honor of Miss Daisy Hunt. Delicious ices and cakes were served, after which a musical was enjoyed. Mr. John King, who can bring the most plaintive and beautiful sentiments from the violin, entertained the gathering and all report a most pleasant time, as they always do when Miss King entertains.

The Ladies' Aid of the Christian church will present "The Deerstick Skule," on the evening of March 9, at the college. Everybody come and enjoy a good laugh, leaving the blues behind.

Friends of Rev. Walker, pastor of the Stanford Christian church for the past 10 years, will preach his farewell sermon there Sunday night. He leaves March 1st, for Shelbyville with his family, to take up his work as minister to the congregation in the capital of Shelby county, to which he accepted a call a few weeks ago.

In view of the fact that this is Rev. Walker's last service in Stanford, the three other churches will not hold services Sunday night, but will meet at the Christian church and take part in a farewell service to Rev. Walker. Announcement is made of this union service by the various pastors in the church news column. It is expected that each of the other three preachers of Stanford will have something to say as a farewell message to their departing co-laborer.

Friends of Rev. Walker, will be glad to see him return to Lincoln county at various times to speak as occasion presents itself. Friends of temperance and state-wide prohibition here have already secured his consent to return to Lincoln this year to speak for these causes, and he will undoubtedly be given a cordial welcome and large audiences whenever he does so.

Wilson Declared Elected

Formal Ceremonies And Count Made By Congress Wednesday

President Wilson was formally and officially declared re-elected late last week when Congress in joint session, as provided by the Constitution, canvassed the electoral vote of the States. As presented and certified the official returns give Wilson and Marshall 277 electoral votes; Hughes and Fairbanks 254. The canvassing of the vote as always, was conducted with much ceremony. The Senate took a recess and proceeded by two page boys, bearing the official returns, marched over to the House chamber, where President pro tempore Saulsbury presided sitting beside Speaker Clark. Vice President Marshall said that, in obedience to the Constitution and laws, the Senate and House were in joint session for ascertaining and counting the electoral votes in the election for President and Vice President of the United States. He then called upon tellers previously selected to come forward and Senators Kern, of Indiana, and Clapp, of Minnesota, and Representative Rucker, of Missouri and Mapes of Michigan, took their places at the clerk's table, and the vote of the States announced.

In this connection an official list of the votes of the states of the union on the presidential race is of interest. The following are the states carried by Wilson and those carried by Hughes and pluralities:

HE STOPPED THE PAPER

A few days ago a subscriber, who is a well known citizen, came to our office and stopped his paper for the reason, he said, that it did not just suit his fancy. We have since met him on the street and it is amusing to note the look of surprise on his face that we are still in existence, despite the fact that he stopped his paper. Some day, and is won't be long either, that gentleman will be no more. His heart will be stilled forever. Neighbors and friends will follow his lifeless clay to the silent city and lay him to rest among silent flowers. An obituary will be published in these columns telling what a good neighbor and beloved citizen he was—which the recording angel will overlook for charity's sake—and in a short time he will be forgotten. As he lies out there in the cold, cold, graveyard, wrapped in the silent slumbers of death, he will never know the last kind word spoken of him was by the editor of the paper he spitefully "stopped." Did you ever pause for a moment and think that your editor, whoever he may be, will write your obituary some day?—Meade County Messenger.

I had that dreadful disease, woman's trouble, which caused such heartburning pains, burning sensation, and dull feeling in my head that I became a nervous wreck. I had five doctors to treat me, all to no avail. I had given up to die and to leave my dear husband and five little girls to the mercy of this world, when at last my husband begged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicine. I weighed 118 pounds when I began their use. I used 18 bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medicated Discovery' and four or five boxes of 'Lotion Tablets.' At the end of the treatment I was well and weighed 103 pounds."—Mrs. RACHEL TACKITT.

Shelby Heirloom

Once Used To Hide Dead Body Of Infant On Shipboard

A very peculiar history is back of an old oak chest that is now in possession of Mrs. Evaline Shelby Roberts, of Marion, Ky., whose father was a grandson of Governor Shelby, of Kentucky. This chest was made for a storage of fine linens, some time prior to the year 1800. A Dutch family by the name of Crider brought the piece of furniture from Holland about the year 1800, using it as storage for their linens while crossing the ocean. During the voyage an infant of Mrs. Crider became sick and died on the vessel. Its mother being unwilling for her child to be cast overboard, after its death hid it away in this chest and in a few days the sailors, who were at that time very superstitious, noticed that the sharks began to follow the ship. It was at once suspected that a death had occurred on board. A search was made, the roll of the passengers and crew was called and all were found to be alive. Finally some one of the crew remembered that a baby had been brought aboard before the ship set sail; another search was made, and the dead child found, concealed in the oak chest with the fine linens, and around its little body the mother had placed different kinds of spices to try and preserve the child until the ship could reach land. Upon its discovery, regardless of the appeals of the mother, it was thrown overboard by orders from the master of the vessel, but the chest in which it had been concealed was brought on across and has been carefully preserved from that time to the present, and is very highly prized by its owner, Mrs. Roberts.

Descendants of the Crider family intermarried with descendants of the Shelby family and in this way the old chest has been handed down from one generation to the succeeding one for the last 300 years.

About eight years ago I got in such a lowstate of health I was unable to keep house for three or four months. I had dull, tired, dizzy feelings, cold feet and hands nearly all the time and could scarcely sleep at all. The doctor said I had a severe case of ulceration and without an operation I would always be an invalid, but I told him I wanted to wait awhile. Our druggist advised my husband to get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has entirely cured me. Now I keep house for seven and work in the garden some, too. I am so thankful I got this medicine. SENATOR BECKHAM'S VOTE

Remarkably strange how disappointed folks who are always against temperance measures, and newspapers which always take the whisky end of a proposition in Kentucky, are over the vote that Senator Beckham cast in congress against the "bone dry" bill the other day. And strange again, isn't it, that the real friends of temperance who are familiar with the progress of campaigns against liquor, understand the position that Beckham took and have not the least word of censure for him. Papers like the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal, the Danville Advocate and others which delight to villify and slander him and have done so upon every opportunity since the fateful day when they delighted in his defeat by Bradley and thereby became parties to the treachery thereof, have reared on their hind legs ranting and raving that Beckham is not a sincere temperance senator and has never been. It is the same old thing, which they drag out whenever they see a chance to vent their dirty spleen, and it hurts Senator Beckham with those who know him and love him for his courage and fidelity to the right principles, not the slightest. Read in another column the statement he makes in regard to the matter, and then read the following which Editor Harry Sommers says in the Elizabethtown News this week:

When Senator Beckham votes against an act of Federal legislation making every state that is state-wide "bone dry," he takes a perfectly reasonable position, and one that will do more to advance the cause of temperance than to retard it.

Prohibition legislation must, to a certain degree, be enacted in response to public sentiment, not in defiance of it and when the Federal Congress proposes to attach a "bone dry" clause to every state-wide prohibition amendment it will succeed in keeping the saloon in a number of states that otherwise would abolish the sale and manufacture of whisky.

Whenever legislation is adopted before there is sufficient public sentiment to justify it, an immediate reaction follows, and the benefits of moderate legislation, indorsed by public sentiment are lost.

In 1906 the Kentucky Legislature submitted the first county unit law, which was the first liquor legislation of consequence passed in the State, and which, at that time, was considered drastic. Public favor was behind the county unit law. It enabled more than 100 counties to rid themselves of the saloons, but if instead state-wide prohibition, for which then there was no considerable clamor had been proposed in 1906, no liquor legislation would have been secured and the benefits accruing from the county unit law would have been lost.

Step by step as public sentiment evolved in its favor, the county unit law was strengthened, and became of great value, but only because every piece of additional legislation was in response to a well defined public sentiment.

This is an exact parallel to the case between state-wide and "bone dry." The people of Kentucky are ready for a vote on state-wide, and there are many who believe the amendment will be submitted if adopted. "Bone dry" is a step after state-wide, and when there is sufficient public sentiment to justify it, the Kentucky Legislature, responsive to the public will, can adopt such legislation. Then, and not until then, will it become effective. In the meantime state-wide prohibition is the next step. It does not require any eulogy of Senator Beckham to prove his devotion to the temperance cause of Kentucky, for not an important piece of liquor legislation has been adopted without his active support and leadership. His vote last week was entirely consistent with that devotion. Any other position would have imperilled the adoption of state-wide prohibition.

Mrs. Charlotte Letcher Warren

On May 12th, 1847 there came into the world through the home of Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Duncan, of Garrard county, a baby girl—christened Charlotte Letcher Duncan. The parents perhaps did not fully realize the potency, the possibilities of this fresh life from God, nor the blessings it would bring in the unfolding years, but they loved and cherished the baby girl and soon she grew to Maiden fair. Then a stranger to the village comes:

"Beckons to the fairest Maiden
And she follows where he leads her
Leaving all things for the stranger."

Thus Charlotte Letcher Duncan became the wife of Richard Crutchfield Warren. Their union was most happy and to them were born sons and daughters. Like Timothy, from a child, Mrs. Warren knew the "Holy Scriptures," being taught by her godly mother whose memory she ever held in tender reverence and love. The Word of the Lord thus early hid in the heart proved a spring of refreshing throughout her life. As the responsibilities of wife and mother came, they were met in faith, with a cherry heart, undaunted courage and rare consecration. She gave herself without reserve to the nurture and training of her household. "Looking well to its ways, and eating not the bread of idleness." While her children were yet small, Mrs. Warren, through the teaching of the great and much loved Kentucky Evangelist George O. Barnes came into closer touch with Jesus. Came to know Him as the indwelling Christ, and to realize His sweet personal interest, sympathy and help in every concern of daily living. She yielded her life to Him, confidently committing herself, her all to His control that His life might be manifested in and through her. So the peace that passeth understanding became her peace and beneath her name in her Bible she wrote "By grace, through faith I have entered into rest." It was the blessed rest of knowing God as revealed in His Son Jesus Christ. No more misunderstanding Him; no longer the veil upon the heart when Moses is read, but the Father seen and known by looking unto Jesus, "The express image of God's person, the fullness of the Godhead in a body." He did the Father's will and delighted to make Him known. God who commanded light to shine out of darkness, shined into the heart of His loving child to give her the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. From this time on she and Jesus were close friends. They walked and talked together holding converse sweet, where He led her followed. She trusted Him, He trusted her. It was her custom to arise early, an hour before her family was astir and keep the morning watch with Jesus to receive a fresh anointing of His love and power ere the cares and service and conflicts of the day began. When sorrow invaded the home Jesus gave the "Oil of joy for mourning." Did Satan burden with a spirit of heaviness, Jesus supplied the "Garment of praise." In every temptation, every vicissitude, the Balm of Gilead and the great Physician were recognized and counted on. Always did she encourage herself in the Lord, proclaiming His name as the all sufficient One, speaking her faith in the language of the prophet Habakkuk, "Although the fig tree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vines; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat. The flock shall be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stables. Yet will I rejoice in the Lord, I will joy in the God of my salvation." She instructed her children in the way of the Lord, leading them on to know and trust Jesus, to realize His presence in the home, His love-right to each life. His power for all their needs. The impress of her life is deep grained into theirs, and they cannot but reflect the heavenly virtues and benefactions that identified her with Christ. "She was a crown to her husband, and his heart did safely trust in her." As her life expanded under the "Warm touch of God" and "His love was shed abroad in her heart by the Holy Spirit given unto her," her ministry also reached out beyond the limits of home and her neighbors and friends were drawn into the love and fellowship of Jesus because of His power in her life. She taught in the Bible School of her church and hearts there felt the thrill of the love of Christ and were won to Him. "She opened her mouth with wisdom, in her tongue was the law of kindness." Through her the Gospel was preached to the poor; she took the prisoner the Word of Life; told it to the colored folk of the town and taught their children in a little class, planting in their hearts the incorruptible Word; confident in God's promise, that His word should not return unto Him void." In season, out of season, by the wayside, in social hours, in the prayer circle she testified of Jesus, His power to save, to keep, to heal, and the blessed hope of His coming. She sowed beside all waters, she cast her bread upon the waves; by gift, by prayer she went into all the earth, telling of her Lord and Master. In the morning she sowed the seed and in the evening she withheld not her hand." So passed her days; fraught with love to Christ and to all for whom He died. Fervent was she in spirit, earnest in service, faithful in prayer, sweet in association with friends, and here memories strong so sacred, so tender and sweet, the heart throbs and sobs with joy and pain, the eyes grow dim, the pen falters and words come not to free the surging tide. Her life's little day draws nigh unto its close. The meridian is passed, the hour of "Sunset and Evening Star" are just ahead.

The daughters—the son, these to whom she had given her best and from whom she ever received beautiful homage and tenderest love, are all about her, delighting in attending her; every thought is for her comfort, each heart is poured out in devotion; while she with loving words and gentle bids them be of courage and good cheer. Now that she can no longer minister with her own hands she uses their willing ones to help others, and devotes her time and thought to the far reaching ministry of prayer. So thankful for this unending labor of love, this most fruitful work of faith, whereby she can reach the man, nearest to her, the one farthest off and all that are in the between. Calm, patient, beautiful she waited, steadfast in the faith, "seeing no man but Jesus only." Looking unto Him, waiting for Him for hath He not said? "If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you, I will come that where I am, there ye may be also." So she watched, and to those watching with her, it seemed at times that she had heard the voice of Jesus, had felt His releasing power and gone with Him, but again the dear eyes would unclose, the loving smile of recognition gladden the anxious hearts, and tender words of love greet the eager ears. Now the light grows fainter, it deepens into night, still, they—and she—and He—our Jesus wait and watch, till the early sunrise of Feb. 12th, 1917 breaks the gray of dawn and flushes the eastern sky with scarlet and gold that shed their lustre across the hills about the little town which so quiet lay, and where for long she had walked and loved and served; then the "Sun of Righteousness" arose with healing in His wings and caught away to the "Abiding place" the spirit and the soul of Charlotte Letcher Warren.

"We cannot say, and we will not say that she is dead, she is just away; With a loving smile, at the wave of a hand
She passed into another land,
And now we dream how very fair
It needs must be, since she lingers there.
Think of her, faring on as dear
In the love of there, as the love of here,
Think of her still as the same, I say
She is not dead, she is just away."

The Master came and she went with Him. None saw the rift in the blue. The eyes were hidden and tear bedimmed, but we know His hand lifted the veil for her. We believe His voice said "Well done! Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Her's the abundant entrance, unchallenged, she walk in, through the gates, into the city, and Jesus held her hand.

As we think of her, let each lay to heart the admonitions to which she gave heed and obedience as she went deeper into Christ, apart from Jesus we can do nothing, be nothing. He alone is sufficient for such a life as hers, the secret of which, it letting Jesus have the right of way, giving life over to His control that "He may will and work in it His own good pleasure." No flesh shall glory in His presence. "The treasure is in an earthly vessel that the excellency of the power may be of God." "As it is written let Him that glorieth glory in the Lord." He wins the beauty, the power, the ornament of our dear friend's life, and she counted it not dear unto herself, so that she might honor Christ, finish her course with joy and be received into glory.

"We are quite sure
God will give her back, bright, pure and beautiful.
We know He will but keep
Our own and His until we fall asleep,
We know He does not mean
To break the strands reaching between this here and there.

That met us here,
Eyes from where beauty God has banished weeping
And wiped away the tear."

BRIGHT AND HAPPY CHILDHOOD RESTORED TO HEALTH THROUGH THE USE OF COM-CEL-SAR

Dear Sirs:

I wish I could make other men understand how grateful I feel for the great benefit COM-CEL-SAR and your CHEYENNE INDIAN REMEDIES have been in my family.

Both of my boys were weakly, puny, sickly, troubled with worms, fever, cough, catarrh, constipation, complaining of terrible pains in all parts of their little bodies, indigestion and their little stomachs would bloat terribly. We had tried everything we could hear of; nothing did any good, when we began using COM-CEL-SAR. You cannot know the joy we felt when both boys began to have refreshing sleep, pains stopped, indigestion stopped. They began to play, look rosy-cheeked and gained flesh; worms quit bothering them; in fact, they were like different boys altogether. My wife has derived wonderful results from the Roots and Herbs—in fact, we are all herbalists now, using nothing but Root and Herb medicine in the home. Yours truly,

733 Vine Street, Louisville, Ky. GEO. M. GUELDA, Grocer

Most Effective Remedy Mother Had Ever Used

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN
RELIEVES BABY WHEN OTHER MEDICINES FAILED

There is nothing so necessary to a child's health and comfort as regularity of the bowels. All children are especially susceptible to stomach trouble and any overstrain of the sensitive organs has a tendency to obstruct elimination. This condition is responsible for much of the illness of childhood.

To relieve constipation a mild laxative should be employed. Cathartics and purgatives are violent in their action and should be avoided. Mrs. Alfred Du Bois, Mt. Holly, N. J., says Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is without doubt the most effective remedy for constipation she has ever used and that it is the only remedy she could find for her baby. Little Earl was badly constipated during his first year and nothing she tried seemed to help him until she got a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Now he is a fine, strong, healthy boy, and she thanks Dr. Caldwell for it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, free from opiates or narcotic drugs; it acts gently without griping or other discomfort, and appeals to children because of its pleasant taste. Druggists everywhere sell it for fifty cents a bottle, and every mother should have it in the house for use whenever occasion arises.

To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes always be sure to ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle free of charge, can be obtained by writing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

The Quest of the Impossible

Are you looking for the impossible trade--the bargain so good--so sure a cinch--that you will never find it. ¶ The man who takes advantage of a fair, legitimate trade--sets it earning dividends in a live and lively way--REALIZES the benefit that the seeker after the impossible flatters himself, he MAY ATTAIN if he waits long enough. ¶ One gets his in the bank, the other in his mind--that's the difference. ¶ Don't wait for the impossible. Utilize some of the good trades which are coming up every day. We have plenty of them. Here are a few specimens.

No. 196--72 acre farm three miles from the courthouse on good pike and in splendid community. Has two houses, one of one and one half story of six rooms, two porches and the other small cottage of four rooms and porch. Has two barns, one of the new 40x60 metal roof and the other barn a square log barn with sheds all around it and new metal roof. Hen house, smoke house, carriage house, well house, fruit house, etc. All in good repair and the fencing all new. Has well at door and cistern at barn also two big ponds of never failing water. All of this farm is in grass except the garden. Good orchard. Will sell this place as a whole or will sell about 20 acres with small cottage and the other 52 acres with all improvements. This place is priced right and you can name your own terms.

No. 198--99 acres in one mile of good town. Has large seven room residence, large new barn and all other outbuildings new and all fencing nearly new. Two good wells in yard besides springs and creek on place. About one half of this farm is in cultivation and the balance in grass except about ten acres in timber. Price $7,500. Terms one half down and balance in one year.

No. 199--20 acres about four miles from Stanford. Three room boxed house. Good well never failing water. Small stable, good crib, etc. 10 acres in corn, a little grass and balance of place in timber, chestnut, oak, black oak and poplar. Has 100 fruit trees. About 200 yards from school house and several acres of this place good tobacco land when cleared. Price only $600. Terms spot cash.

No. 200--56 acres of land about one-third cleared and balance in timber. This property has the famous Elixir Hotel property on it and the same consists of 35 rooms and of this number there is 25 bed rooms and the balance is the office, large skating rink, kitchen, dining room, bath rooms, basement, etc. Two story frame building, metal roof and all of the same is in good repair. This water is the famous water of Kentucky. It is used for drinking and baths too. If this water was concentrated and put on the market it would make good money. It is the finest ever for rheumatism, stomach and kidney trouble, etc. On application will show analysis of water. People come here from all sections of Kentucky and other states too. This hotel is furnished completely, has new piano, about fifty pairs of skates, is steam heated and has all of the modern improvements in the way of water works, etc. Has a good orchard of about two acres and the greatest place for strawberries in the state. Has little bed of about 1,000 plants from which gather about 75 gallons each year. We have a very low figure on this property completely furnished and easy terms.

No. 202--100 acres in Fleming county. About 79 acres bottom land and balance in timber. This 70 acres is mostly in grass. There is about 20 acres of good tobacco land on this farm. Has good orchard. Four room boxed house, ceiled and weatherboarded and shingle roof. Barn 30x36; corn crib, smoke house, etc. This place for sale or trade. The owner is a traveling man and cannot look after it longer as he has been transferred to other territory. Price only $3,000 and terms one-half down and balance in one and two years.

No. 175--Nice 20 acre farm about four miles from Stanford. Has one and one-half story residence of six rooms, pantry, three porches, etc., two stables, smoke house, well house, coal house, cow house and storeroom in one corner of yard. All of the buildings and fencing too in a No. 1 shape. Well at house, good pond and spring and creek. Good orchard. About seven acres in grass. Plenty of locust posts. Price only $1,800. You could not begin to put the buildings on this place for the money. The owner lives in another part of the state and has decided to let it go. This is your opportunity to make some good money.

Kidd's Store

Wheat looks bad, especially late down. Cream separators have at last been demonstrated profitable and a wall for butter is swelling to a roar. The Kentucky farmer is loath to leave the ruts in which his father and grandfather ran. He promptly adopted the double shovel which doubled work of the standard bull tongue, and that murderous implement is today the standard of many in cultivating crops.

The stomach, the worst abused organ of the human system is recognized the essential to life and health by the many. Few know that the roots are the plant's stomach through which nourishment is derived, and the masses continue ruthless, murderous mutilation of the plant's only provision for its assimilation of its food. And, though well aware of necessity of thinning corn, how few apply the rule to other crops, especially in gardens? How many Kentucky farmers ever thinned a patch of Irish potatoes, for instance?

Oldest farmers declare 'present plague of rats worst ever known.

Where contents of cribs have been consumed, pits of vegetables, especially potatoes, have been invaded and the corn shocks at late shucking were found covering a honey comb of rat burrows. Confederate prisoners who supplemented quarter rations with rats pronounced that rodent savor as a squirrel, and avowed a fat dog which was kidnapped and eaten one of the most delicious meats ever tasted but war over hog and hominy, chicken, rabbit, quail and squirrel never admitted a hankering for rat or dog. However, three quarters a century ago Olney's geography, a standard school book, had a picture of a Chinese rat peddler, a light pole on a shoulder from which were pendent strings of rats he supplied the trade. The rat is a succulent comestible, daintily neat of habit and of fastidious diet in contrast with the popular staples, pig and chicken, so why not a campaign of exploitation of a present worst and most expensive pest the husbandman harbors and converts the prolific consumer into a profitable asset? It is only needed to pooh, pooh, a senseless sentimental prejudice, and a few sensible housekeepers publish comical processes of dressing and cooking the tid bit. Let the rat be quickly added to the 'possum, coon, groundhog and kindred meat delicacies, supplying banquets to hungry thousands who can't pay the price for staple meats.

Roads and rats have been the absorbing themes since adjustment to the erratic, eccentric operations of Nature, and abrogation of all established precedents, rules and signs resultant from a mysterious and inexplicable slip of cogs in some part of the machinery.

That our mail carriers can, without regard for schedules, make occasional landings at ends of their runs and exist within bounds of redemption from sin of profanity, as naturally produced as cold by zero temperature, surpasseth understanding, yet there are growls about dereliction of delivery.

Unless commerce of early future shall be aerial, Casey must revert to primitive ox teams and pack horses over byways, for she seems not inoculable with virus of good roads.

The Ground Hog Brotherhood had a thorough housecleaning at last anniversary conclave. The den was dismantled, all mural mottoes, memorial tablets canonized, portraits discarded and a statue of Henry Ford ordered--a replica of the Colossus of Rhodes--astride facade of the den, and a double memorial window placed in honor of the world's noblest philanthropist--after he had been elected an honorary member by acclamation.

In defiance of greedy, predaceous stockholders, he increased capacity of his plant to furnish increased employment of poor and needy and now that the war seems imminent, has tendered the government service of his works at cost of operation and his gratuitous supervision of efficient, economic work.

A mad dog panic has been added to our winter's woes, and slaughter of famishing curs has been almost indiscriminate. During present called session of legislature, let some philanthropist and statesman win immortality by framing a law which will rid his state of the curse of dogs, which restricts sheep raising, one of the farmer's most profitable flocks, to which our state is famously adapted. Create the office of dog killer, who will be sworn to hunt and kill every dog which is found without a licensed badge, attesting ownership and responsibility for all his depredations.

Keeping Yourself Well

HOW YOU GET SICK

Sometimes you overload your stomach with rich foods. Your life may be an active one and thus you may not notice it, but a few days of inactivity show your system does not call for so much. You awake in the morning tired. You are not well, you know you are not well, but the mind. Your digestion has not cared for the overload. Part of it remains. It generates gas that inflames the digestive lining. When it fails to pour out the digested waste, it begins to absorb the life-giving elements. You know something is wrong.

Your body gets weak, and soon opportunity is offered for some severe illness.

Taken in time, the indication would not become serious. First remove the overload; then soothe the sore, painful lining, then restore the weakened body. It's simple to say, but not too easy to do. You need help. A tonic that will quicken digestion, help remove waste, soothe the nervous system and the system--that's just what you need.

Perum has an enviable record in this respect. It has aided many thousands in the last century to overcome just these conditions, and thereby prevent serious sickness.

The tablet form is convenient for regular administration.

BREEDING RECORD COWS

Writing in the Lexington Leader last week, Prof. J. J. Hooper, head of Animal Husbandry Department, University of Kentucky said:

When the Holstein cows that were being officially tested a few years ago produced 30 pounds of butter in a week it was thought that they had reached their ultimate limit, but word has just been received that the cow Segis, Fayne Johanna, 114658, has broken the record by producing in seven days 722 pounds of milk and 40,544 pounds of fat. She calved at the age of eight years and two months. Her sire is King Fayne Segis and her dam is Vilkin Johanna. She was bred in New Jersey and is now owned by Oliver Cabana, Elma Center, New York. She displaces another dairy queen that had a record of 37,43 pounds of fat. The 40.54 pounds of fat is counted as the equivalent of 50.7 pounds of butter.

During five lactation periods this cow has made a record above 30 pounds of butter in a week, which serves to distinguish her above any other cow. The sire of this cow has proved to be an excellent breeder, having 11 daughters that made advanced registry records with their first calves when they averaged 18.8 pounds of butter in seven days and has fourteen other advanced registry daughters.

Mr. Cabana has the $25,000 herd bull Rag Apple Kordyke 8th and this bull has sired the only 30-pound two-year-old that the world has known, and other tested daughters.

This breeding serves to illustrate the fact that if a man is going to produce cattle with great records he must keep within the families that are producing the great records. To simply breed registered cattle these days does not imply that we are improving our herd or the cattle of our district. Improvement comes through a certain limited number of individuals. The new fifty pound cow contains in a concentrated form the blood lines of the Holstein breed that are producing the record animals.

Unless commerce of early future shall be aerial, Casey must revert to primitive ox teams and pack horses over byways, for she seems not inoculable with virus of good roads.

2 Drops Make Corn "Fall" Off!

"We joined the Never-Again Club. Never again will we use anything for corn—just 'Gets-It' and two drops of 'Gets-It' on, and from that second the corn begins to shrivel.

"Oh, Don't Touch It! It's So Sore! Use 'Gets-It' and It Will Never Be Sore!

Instead of swelling up like a little white sponge. Then it loosens from your toe—and, glory halibut! the corn comes off in a single yank you'd take off your hand!"

Yes, "Gets-It" is the corn discovery of the age. More "Gets-It" is sold by many times than any other corn remedy in existence. Try it and you'll know the reason why. It takes two seconds to apply it, and it dries at once. That's all. Don't experiment—follow the experience of millions and use "Gets-It."

"Gets-It" is sold everywhere. The bottle cost only one cent, and price by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Sold in Stanford and recommended as the world's best corn remedy by The Lincoln Pharmacy and The Penny Drug Store.

Rev. Ernest Ford, of Transylvania Bible College, Lexington, and for a year, pastor at Junction City Christian church, has accepted a call for two Sundays to the Pleasant Grove church in Garrard county. He will serve these two churches for 1917.

Mrs. T. J. Blankenship and family moved to the old Oxley place of "Black Ike" Shelly last week. Mrs. Kitch Helm lately vacated it for Mr. Weisiger's residence in Danville, and she and Mrs. Keane will take roomers and boarders in the future.

Prof. E. L. Grubbs was unable to teach his room at school Friday on account of an attack of grippe. Miss Gladys Tucker, his able assistant filled his place for him.

Mrs. Kate King, of Moreland, was among relatives and friends here last week.

Mr. Richard Cox's funeral was preached at the Baptist Church Thursday afternoon and his remains laid to rest in the Junction City cemetery. Uncle Dick will be much missed by all his friends and relatives and the traveling public who were accustomed to see him and hear him play his guitar or organ at our depot, the past few years.

Miss Dewey Lee Arnsperger, one of Louisville's High School class of 1916, a niece of State Senator Nat C. Cureton, of Louisville, one of our Centre College mates of 1884, was the guest of Miss Margaret Grubbs Friday and Saturday.

Misses Sylvia and Edith Lynn, of the old Kenney farm, who have been out of school since November, have returned.

James G. Blaine, our undertaker, has rented the old McGraw farm south of here for the year 1917 and will put it in tobacco this year. So lookout for Gilbert to be seen chasing tobacco worms down the rows this July.

Mrs. W. M. Walker, of 159 Wildwood Avenue, Hartwell, O., came by a while Saturday on her way from Stanford to Liberty to see her old teacher, Prof. Grubbs. Mrs. Walker was once Miss Ollie Phillips, of Liberty. She married in November, W. M. Walker, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati and is a son of a prominent Presbyterian minister.

Our heartfelt sympathy goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Durward Singleton, of Danville, who lost their infant baby, Furra Dink. May they so live that when they are called from this vale of sorrow they may join little Farm on that "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

HIS FOOD NEVER TASTED SO GOOD

Kentucky Farmer Tells How Tanlac Toned Up His System.

"NEVER FELT SO GOOD"

All the milk, butter and eggs produced on his farm did him no good till he tried Tanlac, said J. T. Goolman, R. F. D. No. 7, Winchester, Ky. "I felt tired and worn-out all the time, and lots of times I had to lay off until I had rested awhile," he said. "My stomach bothered me and anything I ate hurt me. Gas formed on my stomach and I belched and bloated—I felt like I had a brick or something heavy in my stomach all the time."

"I had aches in my back and legs, and was so nervous and out-of-sorts that I felt blue and down-and-out. At night I couldn't sleep, and when I got up I felt worse than when I went to bed. I had a bad taste in my mouth nearly all the time, my tongue was coated, and I had sick headaches."

"Finally, my friends advised me to try Tanlac. Well sir, I haven't felt so good in years. Tanlac straightened me up in a hurry."

"I feel like a new man. I work every day and don't feel tired and dragged-out any more. I eat anything I want. My headaches have left and I don't bloat or belch now. I am mighty thankful for Tanlac, for it has done me more good than anything else and I have tried nearly everything."

"I always keep two or three bottles of Tanlac on hand, and all my family use it. I wouldn't be without it in the house for a minute."

Tanlac is sold exclusively in Stanford at The Penny Drug Store, E. R. Coleman, Proprietor.

Tanlac can now be obtained in following nearby cities: Moreland, Abraham Minks; Hustonville, Adams Bros.; McKinney, True & Co.; Ellensburg, Joe McWilliams; Middleburg, W. C. Bryant; Crab Orchard, Lyne Bros.; Brodhead, John Robins; Lancaster, R. E. McRoberts; Bee Lick, Reynolds & Son; Waynesburg, W. A. Johnson.

A REAL LIVE WIRE

S. E. Hubble

The above is only a fair picture of S. E. Hubble, of Moreland, one of the liveliest and most progressive young business men in this or any other county. He travels for Cury, Tunis and Norwood wholesale grocers of Lexington, and "makes" the West End of this county, Casey and the South End and northern section of Pulaski. He is always on the job, and has a following that has found he can be depended upon at all times. Mr. Hubble is a hustler and a splendid gentleman in every way, and the Lexington house is to be congratulated upon having such a salesman on its staff.

Wedding bells are expected to ring pretty soon. Guess who!

Advertising a Sale!

YOU don't leave your rig in the middle of the road and go to a fence-post to read a sale bill do you? Then don't expect the other fellow to do it.

Put an ad in this paper, then, regardless of the weather, the fellow you want to reach will read your announcement while seated at his fireside.

If he is a prospective buyer you'll have him at your sales. One extra buyer often pays the entire expense of the ad. and it's a poor ad that won't pull that buyer.

An ad in this paper reaches the people you are after.

Bills may be a necessity, but the ad is the thing that does the business.

Don't think of having a special sale without using advertising space in this paper.

One Extra Buyer at a sale often pays the entire expense of the ad.
